Unprepared Line Marking - Tape & Roller

After testing and re-testing various paint systems to find the best, without the need for preparation, we can offer this budget product.

Popular with facilities that do not need highly durable solutions, or whose budget is restricted, or more often than not, where the customer is not permitted to prepare the concrete floor in anyway due to leasing conditions and agreements.

The term 'Unprepared' relates to work done to the concrete prior to applying a paint system. It is not strictly accurate however, since we clean the surface thoroughly. The actual concrete is not altered in any way as it would be if using shot blasting or diamond shaving.

We use specialist paints that ingress with the concrete to form an adequate level of adhesion, as you would expect though, this is minimal given its environment. The paint is also very thin to help avoid impact damage and which increases its life expectancy.

This method of floor marking is ideal for short-term projects and provides flexibility for future reconfigurations. Fast cure times reduce the impact on your operation, making us more flexible with installation requirements.
